National Security Study Memorandum 161

TO: The Secretary of State
The Secretary of Defense
The Secretary of the Treasury
The Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: The President's Annual Review of American Foreign Policy

In NSSM 80, October 27, 1969, the President directed that an unclassified Annual Review of American Foreign Policy be prepared and presented publicly at the beginning of each year. This Review has as its purpose a description of the international situation and the Administration's approach to major foreign policy issues.

To assist in preparation of the 1973 Review, each addressee is requested to submit comments and textual suggestions, using as a basic point of departure the Reviews of the past three years and subsequent developments and decisions during 1972.

In addition to outlining the major trends, events, and issues of 1972 and the Administration's approach in dealing with them, the 1973 Report should highlight the continuous thrust and accomplishments of the Administration in dealing with major issues over the last four years. The 1973 Report also should identify major tasks which lie ahead.

A list of topics which should be covered is attached, but other subjects considered to be of particular significance may also be included. In particular, each addressee is requested to suggest topics of broad significance which might be treated in a brief overview in the Report.

Inputs should be submitted to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs by November 1, 1972.
